 The Zora Neale Hurston Roof Garden Museum, Inc. is sponsoring the Juneteenth Gala on Saturday, June 24 at the Belle Glade Elks Lodge, 300 S.E. Martin Luther King Blvd. (Avenue E), Belle Glade.

Juneteenth commemorates freedom from slavery for former slaves in the southern United States. Although the Emancipation Proclamation was issued by President Abraham Lincoln in Jan. 1, 1863, news did not reach the southern states until June 19, 1865. June 19 was for decades celebrated as Emancipation Day in many southern states. As the news passed on through word-of-mouth, June 16, expressed in "dialect," evolved into the word, "Juneteenth."

A reception and silent auction will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the banquet will begin at 7:30 p.m. The speaker will be Tananarive Due, author of The Between. Donation for the event is $30 and ticket information can be obtained by calling 996-2161.

Pahokee youths steal Jeep and crash into Royal Palm Beach home

Tammy Jackson Staff Reporter
 Three Pahokee residents stole a 1992 white Jeep truck in Belle Glade May 24 and drove wildly through Royal Palm Beach before crashing into a residential home on Bobwhite Rd. The Jeep plowed into the bedroom of the house and pushed a 7-year-old boy and his bed across the room.

While on regular patrol May 25, Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office deputies located a vehicle which had been reported stolen to the Belle Glade Police Department. When deputies attempted to stop the vehicle, the driver refused. According to deputies, the driver of the Jeep traveled at high rates of speed.

The Jeep attempted to make a left-hand turn in the roadway, however the vehicle's speed was too great to complete the turn. The Jeep left the roadway and entered the front yard of Bruce and Brenda Kuster's residence, and crashed into the home.

The Jeep's driver and occupants jumped from the vehicle and fled on foot. After a brief foot pursuit, two of the three were captured. A police dog cornered the third occupant.

Arrested and charged with grand theft, fleeing and eluding and reckless driving were Tony Kinsler, the driver of the Jeep, 17, Davara Everett, 16, and Freddie Terry, 19. Terry was booked into the Palm Beach County Jail, while Kinsler and Everett were taken to the Palm Beach County Detention Center.

"I thought it was a nightmare," said 7-year-old Matthew Kunster who was asleep when the accident demolished his bedroom.

Mr. Kunster said when he heard the 2 a.m. crash, he thought the house was collapsing. He ran and grabbed his 5-year-old son. Then he said he saw Matthew climbing over the top of the Jeep. "The only reason he's alive is because of the grace of God," he said.

Detective Jack Fulenwider of the Belle Glade Police Department said the Jeep was reported stolen at approximately 10:45 p.m. May 24 by the Jeep's owner, Lester C. Moseley, 301 N.W. 11th St. Mr. Moseley said he parked the Jeep at his residence at 6 p.m. When he went to leave at 10:30 p.m., he noticed the Jeep was gone.

A Belle Glade man in serious, but stable condition at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach after being found in the middle of the street on his hands and knees with the broke blade of a kitchen knife protruding from his back.

Belle Glade Patrolman Ward Wilson and Det. A.L. Allen found Lee Williams, 22, of 1570 N.W. 11th Street, Belle Glade bleeding profusely from two stab wounds about 2 a.m., May 25 in the 1700 block of East Canal Street.

Palm Beach County's Trauma Hawk was called and Williams was taken to St. Mary's Hospital for treatment. The police investigation revealed that Williams was allegedly stabbed by a woman identified as Maria Martinez, 20, of Belle Glade. Police say the stabbing occurred as a result of an ongoing dispute between Williams, Martinez, and some friends of Martinez.

Martinez was arrested and charged with attempted first degree murder. She is being held in the Palm Beach County Jail without bond.

Off to the People's Republic of China... Joel McDonald, left, and Trey Alava of Belle Glade will be leaving June 15 to visit China as part of the People to People Student Ambassador Program. The boys will spend two weeks visiting the sights and exchanging stories and souvenirs with Chinese students.

Governor and mayor break ground for correctional facility

Tammy Jackson Staff Reporter

When South Bay Growers went out of business last summer, South Bay Mayor Clarence Anthony said he was not sure if the city would survive. He said he immediately had to sit down and regroup. He had to think of a way to reorganize his city after the town's largest employer opted to close down its operations following continuous economic losses. However, May 25 was a day of reckoning for the City of South Bay and the entire Glades community. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new South Bay Correctional Facility were held and Florida Governor Lawton Chiles was in attendance, along with numerous other legislators.

Wackenhut Corrections will construct and operate the $32 million facility which will house 1,318 inmates and employ close to 400 residents. During the commencement services held in the South Bay City Hall, Gov. Chiles looked at Richard Wackenhut, Wackenhut Corrections chief executive officer, and said, "I trust all of these jobs will be filled by people from this area." Mr. Wackenhut agreed with the governor.

Mr. Wackenhut said allowing the facility to locate in South Bay is "the first step in the move to prosperity." Also citing that citizens are interested in job growth, Mr. Wackenhut said he appreciates the trust the community has placed in Wackenhut.

Construction for the facility will begin July 1 and after completion, annual payroll at the facility will total $11 million. Dr. George C. Zoley, president of Wackenhut Corrections Corporation, said, "The starting salary of a correction officer will be $20,000." In an effort to offer jobs to local citizens, Dr. Zoley also said a job fair will be held in the city. He assured the residents in attendance and the South Bay city officials that citizens will have adequate knowledge of the fair.

Mayor Anthony proudly stood and excitedly proclaimed, "We've done it." He said commitment and friendship combined is why the groundbreaking is taking place. He went on to say, "This is only the beginning for the City of South Bay."

Mark Hodges, executive director of the Correctional Privatization Commission, said, the leadership that Mayor Anthony shows is the reason why the facility will be located in South Bay. He said the facility would generate millions of dollars to the community.

Gov. Chiles told the members of the audience they should indeed be proud of Mayor Anthony. He said, "When Clarence heard of U.S. Sugar closing, he showed his leadership for the city." Gov. Chiles and other legislators in attendance said Mayor Anthony actively looked at ways in which the city could overcome possible devastation when U.S. Sugar's decision to close South Bay Growers was made.

Citing the way South Bay Growers and the City of South Bay, along with legislative officials, worked together, Gov. Chiles said, "Florida is a community, not a crowd." He went on to say, "A community is when neighbors help each other."

Determined to keep inmates incarcerated for the length of their prison sentence, the governor said he is proud and excited that the state's newest privately-run facility will be located in South Bay. He also said when he became the governor, inmates were serving 32 percent of their sentence time. Now, the governor said they are serving 75 percent of their sentence, and after this legislative session, they will be serving 85 percent of their sentence.

With numerous people still wary of the idea of locating a prison in their community, Mayor Anthony said, "This project is not about helping prisons, it's about helping economic business in our area." He said he hopes that youths, as well as adults, will not look at the facility as a job opportunity, but look at taking control of their own lives and vow not to end up there (prison). He also said that since South Bay is a predominantly Black community, he hopes to see growth in Black-owned businesses.

Referring to the city, the mayor said, "It's going to be an exciting, vibrant South Bay in five years." He said, "I love South Bay."

The Department of Commerce Secretary, Charles Dusseau, summed it up by saying, "It's like taking lemons and making lemonade out of it."

Two GDS students set to go to China as ambassadors

By Brenda Bunting Editor

An opportunity of a lifetime has been offered to two youths in the area who will be leaving for China on June 15 as part of a student ambassador program.

Joel McDonald and Trey Alava of Belle Glade are two of only 24 students in the nation who have been chosen by the People to People Student Ambassador Program to travel to the People's Republic of China. The boys, both 14, will spend two weeks visiting the sights and mingling with the Chinese people. They were chosen as student ambassadors because of their academic grades, character and based on teacher's recommendations.

Joel said he was scheduled to go to China last year, but had to cancel because of minor surgery. He said he is looking forward to this trip because he was interested in martial arts and hopes to get to see some demonstrations while visiting the country.

Joel is the son of Sherie McDonald of Belle Glade and Jeff McDonald of Houston, Tx.

Trey is the son of Ibrahim and Janice Alava. Both attend Glades Day School in Belle Glade.

The itinerary excites Trey, who says he has been trying to learn some of the key words in Chinese, such as hotel, food, and "I feel sick." "It's hard to learn," he said, "but I'm practicing."

On the schedule is a visit to Tian'anmen Square, the world's largest open public square, the Forbidden City, the Imperial Palace complex and an evening at the Beijing Opera, and the boys will travel halfway around the world to eat at McDonald's.

On June 19, the boys will depart for an excursion to the Imperial Ming Tombs and the Great Wall. That evening they will dine on Peking Duck, a northern-Chinese delicacy.

Florida is the lightning capital of the U.S.

By Mike Lyons

It may be hard to imagine as you read these words that thousands of thunderstorms are taking place around the world. Scientists estimate that at any given time there are between 1,800 and 2,000 thunderstorms rumbling around the globe.

Those same scientists report that each year at least 100,000 thunderstorms form in the United States. More of those thunderstorms pop up here in Florida than in any other state. In our area alone, for example, thunderstorms evolve between 70 and 80 days each year.

Sometimes called "weather factories," thunderstorms commonly produce lightning and thunder, strong gusty winds and torrential downpours. Hail, waterspouts and tornadoes are also produced by the "weather factory."

Of all of its properties, perhaps the aspect of a thunderstorm understood best is lightning. We know, for example, that a lightning bolt can reach a temperature of 54,000 degrees Fahrenheit and has the strength of several hundred million volts.

We also know that Florida is the lightning capital of the U.S. It's estimated that each square mile in our area can be expected to be hit by 25 lightning strikes each year. In fact, the typical Florida thunderstorm produces an average of 46 ground strikes.

We thought we had lightning all figured out except airline pilots kept reporting something that the scientists said didn't exist. The pilots were seeing lightning bolts that developed at the top of a thunderstorm. Lightning bolts that went up, not down.

On Aug. 6, 1980, a pilot returning to Miami reported a lightning bolt originating from the top of a thunderstorm. He said the bolt shot straight up an estimated 15,000 feet.

Now thanks to satellite photographs at the Osborne Geophysical Institute at the University of Alaska at Fairbanks, the scientists believe the pilots. Vertical lightning does exist and may be more common than anyone imagined.

What's more, this new kind of lightning is nothing like the more familiar cousin. For one thing, vertical lightning comes in living color. Some are pink or blood red, others are dark blue or purple.

Scientists are calling the red lightning "sprites" because they appear for only a few thousandths of a second. Yet, these sprites are amazing. Traveling in groups of two or more, the sprites can extend upward for 60 miles.

The blue lightning, nicknamed "jets" by the scientists, move so fast they often make shock waves. The blue jets have been clocked at 60 miles a second which is much faster than the speed of sound.

Why haven't we discovered this amazing phenomenon until now? While both blue and red vertical lightning may extend for many miles into the atmosphere, they are much fainter than regular lightning. In addition, vertical lightning is often gone in a blink of an eye while regular lightning can flash for a second or more.

It is estimated that around the world, lightning strikes the ground approximately 100 times a second. I wonder how many vertical lightning bolts strike the sky every second? Someday maybe we'll know.

That evening, they will depart by train for Weifang where they will visit a kite museum and then travel to the outskirts of the city to fly Chinese Kites.

Joel and Trey said they have been asked to bring small, inexpensive gifts with them to China to give to the people they meet, especially for the Janice Alava said they have collected a few small items, but would appreciate any small souvenirs local business would like to donate, such as pens, buttons, or cups.

She said they boys will be taking pictures of their school, neighborhood, and homes to show to the Chinese people so they can see what a typical American home and neighborhood looks like.

To voice your opinion on any subject, call Speak Out at 996-6636, 24 hours a day. Readers can use this special number to pose questions, voice complaints, express opinions or put somebody on the back. Unlike letters to the editor, Speak Out is designed for anonymous expression of opinions. We edit calls for clarity, brevity, relevance and fairness.

Chain letter is false

I'm calling in reference to a chain letter that is being spread throughout the Glades community. It's a letter that says that those drivers who were driving their cars during the years of 1976, 1977, and 1978, are eligible for a $78 refund due to overpayment of gasoline taxes.

I talked with Tallahassee, the Capital Department of Legal Affairs, the Anti-Trust Division and they say this letter, although it does have a notary acknowledgment at the bottom, and wants the person to get the paper notarized, it's not a legitimate letter. They say they have received thousand of these letters over the years, but there is no refund on this. Thank you for letting me let people know."

Editor's note: We received a Speak Out about a problem a woman had while doing business at a local store. Since this is the only store of its type in Belle Glade, we felt it would be unfair to allow criticism of this business. We believe this caller should have called the police about the rock throwing incident which was not the fault of the establishment where she happened to be doing business.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

It's distressing that the women of Florida will not have the right to make informed choices, since the Woman's Right to Know bill failed in the 1995 Regular Legislative Session. Despite wide support from legislators and endorsement from the Tampa Tribune on April 2 of this year, the bill never made it out of committee and was never debated on the floor of either chamber. The purpose of the bill was to inform women of the medical and psychological risks of abortion, as well as the possible alternatives. The bill included a 24-hour waiting period in which a woman would consider this information prior to making her final decision.

If a woman were requesting a hysterectomy, I'm sure her doctor would inform her of any possible risks of surgery, as well as make certain she wanted to take such a drastic measure. The decision to have an abortion, like the decision to have a hysterectomy, can affect the rest of a woman's life. Why should she not know that the physical risks include infertility, pelvic inflammatory disease and ectopic pregnancies, just to name a few. As for the psychological effects, depression, guilt, suicidal thoughts and in extreme cases, post-traumatic stress disorder, very often follow an abortion.

In a day and age where women are fighting to make their own choices, it's deplorable that the members of our state government have denied them the right to be completely informed about abortion.

Sincerely,
Bob Brooks
State Rep., District 35

Dear Editor:

The State of Alabama has been the object of much press attention in recent weeks as it reinstituted "chain gangs" in its criminal justice system. Felons serving prison terms are being required to chop weeds and pick up trash. Only medium-security inmates with at least two trips to prison are being required to serve on the chain gangs.

Also, the Florida state legislature has just passed a bill during its 1995 regular session that includes chain gangs as one of its provisions. It is expected that chain gangs will be reinstituted in Florida in the near future as a result of that bill's passage. Other states have expressed an interest in the same concept, and it wouldn't be surprising to see the practice grow. I think most Americans believe that our prison system at the state and federal levels has been too worried about "recreation" for prisoners and not concerned enough about punishment, restitution and rehabilitation.

Prison officials pushing for chain gangs are targeting repeat offenders, who often treat jail as a revolving door.

What our current prison system has failed to do is remind criminals that they ought to feel guilt and shame for their acts. We must rid ourselves of the myth that today's criminals are motivated by poverty or lack of self-esteem, which tells them that society's rules and constraints do not apply to them.

However, the American Civil Liberties Union is vowing to sue to force Alabama to end chain gangs. But what is astonishing is a statement issued several weeks ago by the U.N. Committee on Torture. It criticizes Alabama and promises an investigation into whether international treaties are being violated. Since when is work considered torture? And why is it acceptable for upright and honest American citizens to work for a living while prisoners watch cable and enjoy other amenities available at many of our prisons?

If prisoners don't want to pick up trash on the side of the road—that's good! That's why chain gangs are being set up. They aren't meant to be enjoyable, they're meant to be a deterrent to crime.

It's about time we make prison unappealing, and not club med.

Sincerely,
F. Sutton McGehee, Jr.
President of Mac Papers Jacksonville

Guest Commentary

Competition is better for consumer

By Robert E. Allen
Chairman and CEO of AT & T

Right now, Congress is considering telecommunications legislation that could have a dramatic effect on consumers everywhere. In both the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives, bills have been proposed that could open the door to competition for local phone service.

Why should you care if competition can be introduced in the local phone service market? Simply because you, as a consumer, always, always, get a better deal when you can choose from suppliers competing for your business—rather than having no choice but to deal with one monopoly provider.

In the long distance business, competition has proven to be a dazzling success. In the 11 years since my company started to really compete for your business, the industry's prices have dropped 66 percent, new technology has been deployed at an unprecedented rate, and customers now choose from an incredible array of special packages to suit their own needs—unheard of a decade ago.

We at AT & T think customers would gain the same benefits if real competition for local phone service could be introduced. That's why we are supporting legislation that can make this possible. And that's why we're saying that when local competition exists, we will welcome the Bell companies into the long distance market, presently off-limits to them.

But to work for customers, we must make sure of two things. First, we must establish real local competition first—before the Bells are allowed into competitive markets like long distance. Otherwise, they would have a huge and unfair advantage of having a monopoly lock on access to customers their long distance competitors need to reach. Second, we need a federal agency like the Department of Justice to verify that local competition actually exists before the Bells enter other business.

If you agree that real competition for local phone service would be a good deal for you, ask your elected officials to insist on local competition first. You will be the big winner in this legislative debate.

Another view of the welfare debate

By John R. Smith

A curious thing is happening in the debate about our national welfare state: its champions have begun citing religious tenets as reasons to continue it. For example, here's what David Liederman, Executive Director of the Child Welfare League of America, said on CNN's "Crossfire" on Nov. 15, 1994 in a debate on the welfare reforms proposed in the Republican "Contract with America":

"[This proposal] is the most mean-spirited piece of legislation that I've seen in my 30 years. It's outrageous, and not only the Catholic Bishops should be opposing this, but every religious person in the United States of America, everyone who calls themselves [sic] a Christian, everyone who is religious should be opposing this and should throw out of office anyone who supports this legislation.

And here's the way Paul Galloway of the Chicago Tribune put it in a piece carried in the Tallahassee Democrat on Feb. 15:

To the followers of Judaism, Christianity and Islam, God is adamant: The individual and the community are required to help the weak and the poor, the sick and the hurt, the impaired and the uprooted. Indeed, the holy books of these faiths and the commentaries of their sages could be viewed as a "Contract with Humanity," a magnanimous theological counterpart of the GOP's vaunted political document, "Contract with America."

This is amazing! These two backers of our massive welfare state insist that it must be continued because the Bible, the Torah, and the Koran say so. Uh, isn't there something in our Constitution that prohibits basing public policy on religion... something about the "separation of church and state"? Now of course religious principles are legitimate reason for people, as individuals, to voluntarily give to charities that help the poor. But, under the U.S. Constitution, religious teachings must not be the basis for government to use its awesome power to force people to practice acts of charity.

I don't recall the architects of the government welfare state previously using religious arguments as a defense. In fact, over the past 30 to 40 years, their main "sales technique" has been a negative one; they have silenced dissenters through the use of guilt and name calling. Labels such as "uncaring," "insensitive," "greedy," "selfish," and the current favorite "mean spirited," have been pinned on those who have spoken out against government-enforced welfare programs.

It should also be noted that welfare partisans typically do not cite the Constitution as justification for such programs. Why? Because there is no legal basis in our Constitution for government to engage in welfare activities; that is, to take money from one group and give it to another based on someone's moral judgment that those favored are somehow more entitled to the money than are those from whom it is forcibly taken.

Encouragingly, taxpayers are now beginning to reject the guilt trip, ignore the labels, and say "Enough!" That's because it's becoming ever clearer that—except for the bureaucrats who administer it—our government mandated welfare state truly hurts everyone. It is not morally, legally, or economically defensible and, in fact, has done terrible harm to the very people it is supposed to help.

It has built a culture of malignant dependency—luring second, third, even fourth generations onto the dole...

It has replaced fathers with government social workers and has thereby undermined families...

It has given rise to an explosion of teen pregnancies and to mushrooming levels of illegitimacy.

In many of those caught in its web it has displaced a sense of individual responsibility with an "I'm entitled" attitude.

And, the cost of maintaining it is a significant part of the growing national debt we are passing on to our children and grandchildren.

Yes, these are all valid reasons that most of our government welfare states should be dismantled. Those who argue that it should be continued, however, must put forth some rationale other than religious principles.

Mr. Smith works for the James Madison Institute for Public Policy Studies in Tallahassee.

Planned Parenthood now offering colposcopy

Imagine this situation: the Pap test you had last week has come back "abnormal". Now you are being told you should make an appointment for a colposcopy. What???

Never fear, colposcopy is a painless 10-minute exam. Using a colposcope (a special low-power telescope) your health practitioner looks at a magnified view of your cervix (the tip of your uterus) to determine whether there are any areas that appear abnormal. The colposcope does not touch you.

If the colposcopy finds abnormal areas, small pieces of tissue from the cervix may be removed. This sample is then further examined for a diagnosis. The biopsy usually causes little discomfort, but there may be slight spotting or bleeding for the next few days. Another procedure sometimes performed after colposcopy is cryotherapy, which freezes some of the tissue of the cervix. This treatment removes abnormal cells.

In the past, Planned Parenthood of the Palm Beach Area, Inc. did not have trained staff or equipment needed to provide colposcopy services; therefore, any client who required a colposcopy was referred to another medical provider in the community. The high cost of care from a private physician and the unavailability of subsidized services have been major barriers for many of Planned Parenthood clients. Some women were simply unable to seek the care that they needed.

Planned Parenthood of the Palm Beach Area, Inc. is proud to announce that colposcopy is now available. Planned Parenthood will be able to provide this vital service at a lower cost than most private physician's offices, making it accessible to all women, regardless of income.

Persons wishing to have more information about colposcopy services, or who want to make a contribution to help subsidize these services, please call Nancy Gullo, director of patient services, at (407) 848-6402.

South Florida anglers happy with new regulations

Back in 1992 when the Florida Game & Fresh Water Fish Commission passed the first major changes in large-mouth bass regulations in decades, some bass anglers were wary.

The new 14-inch minimum length limit aroused concern because most of the bass caught at tournaments in south Florida were under that size, said John Fury, a GFC fishery biologist who head the Everglades study.

Now that the regulations have been in place for more than three years, Mr. Fury conducted a survey of 142 anglers belonging to nine different bass clubs in Broward and Dade counties. A majority were pleased with the new regulations.

Survey results showed that 76 percent of the anglers believed that bass fishing has improved in the Everglades since the new regulations were enforced. Of the remainder, 13 percent disagreed, and 11 percent had no comment.

A majority, 72 percent, also stated that the 14-inch size restriction posed no problem in tournament fishing. Of the remainder, 20 percent wanted to lower the limit to 12 inches, and the rest recommended no size limits at all to a 16-inch size limit.

Mr. Fury said that 83 percent of the anglers polled said the 14-inch minimum-size limit was appropriate for the southern part of the state. Nine percent opted for a 16-inch limit, and 7 percent wanted a 12-inch limit. The five largemouth bass per day limit recent an 80 percent approval.

The new regulations were instituted to protect 1- and 2-year-old fish from being harvested so they would grow to a more desirable size, Mr. Fury said. The old regulations had no size restriction, and a 10 bass per day limit.

The Everglades Investigation Project is funded 75 percent by Sport Fish Restoration monies derived from an excise tax on fishing equipment. The remaining 25 percent is provided by the state.

Valedictorian receives $5,000 Mary Kay Scholarship

Sharika Brown of Glades Central Community High School recently received a $5,000 scholarship from the Mary Kay National Scholars Program which is funded by the Mary Kay Foundation.

"Since our beginning, Mary Kay Cosmetics has been helping women achieve their dreams of financial independence as entrepreneurs," said company founder Mary Kay Ash. "In keeping with this vision of making dreams come true for others, we established the Mary Kay National Scholars Program to ensure that young women, who have overcome some of the most taxing of hardships in our society, have the opportunity to pursue a college education."

The program is administered through the Horatio Alger Association, whose mission is to honor Americans who have overcome adversity in their lives to achieve tremendous success. Since her own induction in 1978 to the Horatio Alger Association, Mary Kay has been an active board member with particular interest in the scholarship program. The Mary Kay National Scholars Programs uphold the same selection criteria, reaching out to those young women who, despite the hardships in their lives, are determined to go to college and are in critical need of assistance.

Students must demonstrate integrity, self-reliance, determination, and perseverance in overcoming adversity; critical financial need; academic potential, as determined by test scores, grades and recommendations; participation in co-curricular school activities; commitment to the community as evidenced through volunteer work or other forms of service; and potential and aspiration to make a unique contribution to society.

Selection of the Mary Kay National Scholars is done by the Horatio Alger Association through its National Scholarship Committee, comprising five of the association's members.

"We all know that Alicia bakes

she bakes a pretty darn good pie, too, and she's one heck of a fine woman, if you know what I mean."

Rosenwald staff member receives nomination

Staff member Lorie Moore (HIPPY coordinator) has been nominated by the Wellington New Horizons Chapter as candidate for one of the 1996 Top 10 'Businesswomen of the American Businesswomen's Association.

Rosenwald will observe the fifth grade graduation exercises on June 14. The speaker for the occasion will be Eugene Morris, Information Director for the Florida Department of Corrections in Tallahassee.

Parents and families attended 'Fighting Fair For Families' workshops May 23. The workshop offered families tools to handle conflicts in healthy and productive ways at home. Do disagreements over power struggles? Is there constant friction and bickering which escalates into combat? Does anger take over and allows reason to go out the window? Answering 'yes' to any of those questions indicates a need for workshops. Cynthia Gilliam, parent resource coordinator spearheaded the project.

HIPPY updates

HIPPY graduation will be held June 15 at 7 p.m. in the school's cafeteria. Parents should dress students in their 'Sunday Best' and everyone in the HIPPY family is asked to be on hand for this very important occasion.

The HIPPY Parent Night Meeting was held May 17 in the school's cafeteria. The speakers for this meeting were Cynthia Crosby and Garry Davis, kindergarten teachers at RES. The topic of the talk was 'Kindergarten Expectations for Child, Parent, Teacher'. The parent enrichment activity was playing Bingo for Books. Child enrichment activities included 'A Special Gift For Mother'.

Door prizes were awarded to a HIPPY mother and father, along with special recognition for parent participation, and the usual monthly birthday celebrations.

Wackenhut Corp.: A brief history and description

The Correctional Privatization Commission awarded Wackenhut Corporations the bid to construct and operate a privately-run correctional facility in the City of South Bay. Construction for the facility will begin in July. What is Wackenhut about and how will it help the Glades community? The following information was compiled by The SUN Staff Reporter Tammy Jackson.

The story of The Wackenhut Corporation has its beginning in 1954 when George R. Wackenhut and three other former Special Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) formed a company in Miami to provide investigative services to businesses and industries.

The approach by Wackenhut was so well received by clients, a second company was formed in 1955. The two companies combined in 1958 under the name of Wackenhut Corporation (TWC). Its headquarters was established in Coral Gables in 1960.

For more than three decades, Mr. Wackenhut was the president and chief executive officer of the firm. Today he remains chairman of the board of directors and the chief executive officer. His son, Richard R. Wackenhut, has been the president and chief operating officer since 1986.

An early milestone in the company's development was the major security and fire protection contract it signed with the Martin Company in Orlando in 1958. This contract led to a contract with Martin in 1961-1963, involving nearly 1,100 people for security at Titan missile sites in four states.

By the end of 1961, TWC had a total of 1,332 employees and was expanding rapidly. In 1962, Wackenhut operations extended from Florida to California and Hawaii. TWC became public in 1966 with over-the-counter stock sales. TWC joined the American Stock Exchange in 1967, and moved to the New York Stock Exchange in 1980.

The core business of TWC is furnishing total security and complete investigative services and systems to business, industry and professional clients, and to various agencies of the U.S. government.

In 1988, Wackenhut Corrections Corporation was formed as a separate wholly-owned subsidiary of the Wackenhut Corporation. It had formerly been a Division of the Corporation's Government Services Group, and in 1986 had entered the specialized field of managing correctional and detention facilities by winning a contract to design, build and then operate a 167-bed Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) facility in Aurora, Colo.

The subsidiary experienced a great deal of growth in the ensuing years, having revenues of $2 million in 1988, and expanding to $64 million by the year 1993. In July 1994, Wackenhut Corrections Corporation became a separate publicly-owned corporation, and its shares began trading on the Nasdaq Stock Market. Its revenues for the first half of 1994 exceeded $49 million.

Wackenhut Corrections Corporation is a private corrections industry leader in providing counseling, basic education, job-skill training, chemical dependency treatment and other programs directed toward the rehabilitation of inmates, as well as physical security and facility management. It is now contracted to manage 21 correctional and detention facilities in the United States, Australia, Puerto Rico and the United Kingdom, with a total number of beds, or inmate capacity, of 13,627.

Construction for Wackenhut Corrections' newest, and largest, facility will begin in July. They were awarded a contract for the design, finance, acquisition, lease, construction and operations of a 1,318-bed, medium and close-custody secure correctional facility for adult male inmates. Wackenhut will also maintain design and construction oversight of the South Bay Correctional Facility to ensure full compliance with all standards and requirements.

According to Wackenhut Corrections officials, the mission of the facility is to provide a secure, cost-effective environment capable of accommodating medium and close-custody male inmates in a setting that maximizes the opportunity for personal development through access to academic and vocational training, work opportunities, substance abuse programs, counseling and open communication with qualified staff, while providing humane care and positive treatment. The management philosophy is based upon a decentralized approach to the delivery of as many of the inmate services as possible.

The facility will house 1,318 inmates which will be maintained in 27 small, manageable housing buildings of no more than 50 each. The overall design of the facility allows for direct line-of-sight observation further enhanced by a CCTV (closed circuit television) system.

Officials say the facility design also allows for cost-effective utilization of security staff and thereby allows for enhanced programmatic activities without significant budgetary implications. A fully-equipped kitchen will provide meals for inmates and staff, and indoor and outdoor recreation will be provided.

Two local students win scholarships

Two local high school seniors were awarded Harold Strasser, M.D. Memorial Scholarships in the amount of $500 each.

The winners were Vanisha Brown from Glades Central Community High School and Mary Burroughs from Pahokee Middle School.

The presentations were made at the Palm Beach County Medical Society's May board meeting by Douglas D. Dedo, M.D., first vice president of the Medical Society and chairman of the Strasser Memorial Scholarship Foundation.

The Harold Strasser, M.D. Memorial Scholarship was established in memory of Dr. Harold Strasser, who was killed in 1983 while administering first aid to two automobile accident victims in their overturned van. Another car hit the van, causing it to flip over on top of Dr. Strasser, killing him instantly.

Dr. Strasser was an orthopedic surgeon with a reputation for providing free medical care to financially distressed patients.

Douglas D. Dedo, M.D., first vice president of the Palm Beach County Medical Society presented Glades Central community High School senior Vanisha Brown with a $500 scholarship.

Pahokee High School senior Mary Burroughs was presented a $500 scholarship by Douglas D. Dedo, M.D., first vice president of the Palm Beach County Medical Society.

PORTRAIT OF AN ENVIROSHOPPER

"I only buy what can be recycled"

So, you're an enviroshopper. What exactly does that mean?

It means I keep the environment in mind when I go shopping - I buy products that won't harm the earth or end up in our landfills.

How do you do it?

Well, I recycle what I buy. I make sure that the products I purchase have little or no packaging. If there is packaging, I make sure that it can be recycled.

So, you recycle everything?

Well, now the Solid Waste Authority accepts not only newspaper, aluminum, #1 and #2 plastic containers, glass and cardboard, now they take drink boxes and milk cartons, too. I look at every item before I put it in my grocery cart to make sure it's packaged in material that can be recycled.

It seems like you're making a difference.

I know I am. I've shared my enviroshopping tips with friends and co-workers, and I let grocers and manufacturers of the products I buy know I appreciate and recognize their environmental efforts.

Any words of advice?

Keep Palm Beach County a beautiful place to live by recycling everything you can. If you don't know what can be recycled, just ask the folks at S.W.A.

Recycling is just one way to enviroshop. To learn more about recycling, enviroshopping and waste prevention, call the Solid Waste Authority at 930-ASAP. Because there's no time to waste.

FIBA opens new office in South Bay

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

"This is for the community," said Donna Silesky, FIBA Corporation office manager, when she describes FIBA and how it intends to help people in the Glades.

FIBA Corp. opened its new offices in South Bay, 155 U.S. 27N, in the South Bay Plaza last week and according to Mark Anthony Williams, transportation manager, "We are hoping this office will become a full-fledged travel agency."

Mr. Williams said Greyhound services will be available through FIBA no later than June 10. Therefore, opposed to purchasing tickets from large travel agencies, or even traveling to the coast to make purchases, tickets can be purchased at the South Bay location.

Presently offering automobile, car, health and life insurance, FIBA also offers loans (personal, business, and loans for consolidation). Fax services are available as well as Telecopy phone services. Mr. Williams also said FIBA is hoping to become a Southern Bell pay station.

FIBA presently offers check cashing for Social Security, Public Assistance and payroll.

The 9-year-old FIBA company is headquartered in West Palm Beach. With present locations already in Belle Glade, Lake Worth and Stuart, along with the South Bay location, Mr. Williams said the company is looking to expand into Clewiston and Tampa.
